France Considers Retaliatory Measures Against Israel Over Palestine Recognition

According to the French newspaper Le Figaro, diplomatic tensions between France and Israel are rising as Israel considers a strong response to France's potential recognition of a Palestinian state.

French Reaction

A source close to French President Emmanuel Macron told Le Figaro that the Israeli Foreign Ministry is considering closing the French Consulate General in Jerusalem. The source added that France has the right to refuse such a move and could retaliate against Israel's embassy in Paris.

A French diplomat stated that France is preparing "very strict measures" against Israel that would go beyond typical reciprocal actions, including the potential expulsion of Israeli diplomats from Paris.

The diplomat also noted that a unified European response with sanctions is impossible because both Germany and Hungary oppose it.

Israeli Stance

An Israeli source told Le Figaro that if France recognizes a Palestinian state, Israel's response will be to annex West Bank settlements. The report suggests that the extent of Israel's reaction depends on the magnitude of France's action.
